Iranian female fighter cancels return home after arrest warrant issued

Iran's boxing federation head disputed the claim that Sadaf Khadem would be arrested.

The first Iranian woman to contest an official boxing bout has canceled plans to return home after an arrest warrant was issued for her in Tehran, her representative said on Wednesday as Iranian authorities issued a denial.

Sadaf Khadem beat a French boxer, Anne Chauvin, in the bout, which took place in western France on Saturday.

Her representative told Reuters that authorities had issued arrest warrants against her and fight organizer Mahyar Monshipour.

Monshipour, an Iranian-born former boxing world champion who is now a French citizen, set up the bout after Iran opened the door to allowing women to box.

Hossein Soori, the head of Iran's boxing federation, denied Khadem would be arrested, attributing the information to "media linked to Saudi Arabia."

"Mrs Khadem is not a member of [Iran's] organized athletes for boxing, and from the boxing federation's perspective all her activities are personal," he was quoted as saying by the semi-official ISNA news agency.

Iranian women's participation in sports events is heavily restricted, though authorities are beginning to give ground in some areas after years of campaigning by pressure groups.

The federation now allows women to register to box, on condition that they be coached by a woman and wear the Islamic hijab while competing. To date, no bouts between female fighters have taken place in Iran.

Monshipour was planning to travel back to Iran with Khadem this week.

France's foreign ministry could not immediately comment on the case and neither could Khadem nor Monshipour.

Getaway driver in deadly Brink's heist granted parole

3 The New York State Parole Board released former radical Judith Clark, 69, after serving more than 37 years for a deadly Brink's heist in 1981 resulting in the death of two police officers and a security guard in Rockland County. The former Weather Underground member was convicted of second-degree murder and robbery in the first degree for driving the getaway vehicle in the armored car robbery. According to the NYT, Clark was originally sentenced to 75 years to life but transformed during time in prison from a left-wing extremist to a model prisoner known for good works. Supporters for her release included over 70 elected officials and 11 state, and several members of the judiciary and law enforcement. Clark was granted clemency by Gov. Cuomo in 2016, making her eligible for parole but the board rejected her release in 2017. METRO STAFF

Dozens of Appalachia docs charged in opioid fraud bust

4 Dozens of medical professionals in Appalachia, a region hard-hit by the U.S. opioid crisis, have been charged with writing hundreds of thousands of illegal prescriptions and committing health care fraud, federal prosecutors said on Wednesday. Sixty people, including 31 doctors, were accused of illegally prescribing opioid drugs in exchange for cash and sexual favors in the rural, mountainous region stretching from Pennsylvania and West Virginia to Alabama and Louisiana. "The opioid epidemic is the deadliest drug crisis in American history, and Appalachia has suffered the consequences more than perhaps any other region," Attorney General William P. Barr said in a statement. Some 130 Americans die every day from an opioid overdose, according to the Centers for Disease Control. REUTERS

Citing cruelty to animals, if the ban goes into effect, NYC would join San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Once ubiquitous in Fifth Avenue fashion houses, fur products are now in the crosshairs as lawmakers are mulling a ban on the pelts of animals.

City legislators are pushing for a halt on the sale of new fur products, citing animal cruelty as the reason behind the ban.

According to NBC New York, Albany is considering similar measures to impose a statewide ban on the sale of any items made with fur and ban the manufacture of products made from trapped fur. The fur trade in New York dates back to the days of Henry Hudson and the original settlers of the area who trapped and manufactured beaver pelts.

Today, roughly 1,100 people work in the fur industry in NYC and may lose their jobs as a result of the ban. Advocates for stopping the fur trade dismiss these concerns, claiming that the practice is inhumane and archaic.

"Cruelty should not be confused with economic development," state Assemblywoman Linda Rosenthal, a Democrat from Manhattan who is sponsoring the state legislation, told KTLA 5 News. "Fur relies on violence to innocent animals. That should be no one's business."

FURNYC, an activist group rallying against the ban, said more than 130 strictly-fur businesses operate in New York City, the largest fur market in the U.S. These businesses make up 70 percent of high-end designer clothing, such as parkas, UGG boots, handbags, fake eyelashes, paintbrushes and home décor products. FURNYC claims that the United States manufactured more than $352 billion in fur apparel and accessories in 2018, and that fur products sold by secondary retailers were estimated at $120 million in 2017.

"Everyone is watching this," said Nancy Daigneault, vice president at the International Fur Federation in London, to CBS News. "If it starts here with fur, it's going to go to wool, to leather, to meat."

Fur farming was outlawed in England and Wales in 2000, and in Scotland in 2002. Fur products can still be legally imported from other countries and sold in the United Kingdom. Should the ban go through, New York City would join San Francisco, where a fur ban will go into effect later this year, and Los Angeles, where a similar ban will be implemented in 2021.

Teenager 'infatuated' with Columbine found dead in Colorado

Sol Pais, 18, was found wearing camouflage pants, a black T-shirt and boots.

Area schools were closed on Wednesday as FBI agents, Jefferson County deputies and Colorado state troopers searched for Pais.

A Florida teenager believed to be armed and "infatuated" with the Columbine massacre was found dead by authorities in Colorado after she traveled to the state days before the 20th anniversary of the school attack, according to CNN and other media reports.

Sol Pais, identified as an 18-year-old woman from Surfside, Florida, whom authorities had called "extremely dangerous," was found in Clear Creek County, a local CBS affiliate reported. CNN, citing law enforcement sources, reported that she was dead when authorities found her.

Pais was "no longer a threat to the community," Patricia Billinger, a spokeswoman for Colorado's Public Safety Department told Reuters. She declined to elaborate.

Clear Creek County is about 40 miles west of Columbine High School, where two teenaged male students shot and killed 12 classmates and a teacher on April 20, 1999, before committing suicide.

Pais flew from Miami to Denver on Monday, where she bought a pump-action shotgun and ammunition, FBI Special Agent in Charge Dean Phillips said at a news conference late on Tuesday. Denver is adjacent to Jefferson County.

Some 20 to 30 officers were searching for her near the Echo Lake Campground in the Arapaho National Forest on Wednesday morning, CBS 4 in Denver reported.

A spokeswoman for the Miami-Dade County Public Schools said that Pais was a student at Miami Beach Senior High School and that there was no threat to schools within the district.

On Tuesday, an FBI bulletin said authorities lacked probable cause for a formal arrest but that law enforcement should detain Pais for a mental-health evaluation.

The Jefferson County sheriff's Twitter post, which included two photos of Pais, said she was dressed in a black T-shirt, camouflage pants and black boots. REUTERS

Former Columbine High School principal Frank DeAngelis.

REUTERS

Columbine principal, haunted by 20-year-old massacre, still recites victims' names

Saturday marks the 20th anniversary of the Columbine shootings in which 13 were killed.

Each morning for the last two decades, Frank DeAngelis has recited aloud the names of the 13 people killed at Columbine High School, where he served as principal during the 1999 massacre that marked a modern era of mass school shootings.

"When I wake up in bed each morning, that's the first thing I do is recite the names. Then I go into my office and pray," DeAngelis, 64, told Reuters in an interview. "They have been with me since that day and they'll continue to be with me for the rest of my life in the Columbine community."

On April 20, 1999, two heavily armed Columbine students stormed the school in suburban Denver, killing 12 classmates and a teacher before turning their guns on themselves and committing suicide. At the time, it was the deadliest school shooting in U.S. history.

Saturday marks the 20th anniversary of the Columbine tragedy, and DeAngelis, who retired as principal five years ago, will speak at some of the solemn events celebrating the victims whose lives were cut short.

For DeAngelis, the details of that day are never forgotten. As he shepherded about 20 students to safety down a corridor when the shooting erupted, DeAngelis came face-to-face with one of the shooters, who fired at him but missed.

"I saw a gunman coming toward me and everything was in slow motion," he said. "But I so vividly remember the sounds of the gunshots breaking the glass behind me."

In the days and weeks following the massacre, DeAngelis became the face of Columbine, giving countless interviews recounting the ghastly shooting and its heart-breaking aftermath.

But some of the hardest moments were still to come. DeAngelis led students, teachers and parents through the dark days following the shooting, and through other gut-wrenching events that followed months and years later.

The mother of a girl left paralyzed from the shooting committed public suicide six months after the massacre. A little more than a year after the rampage, a Columbine student who witnessed murdered teacher Dave Sanders get shot in the opening salvo of gunfire inside the school hanged himself.

"I just joined a club in which no one wants to be a member," DeAngelis said. "And I realized that my life had changed forever."

He sought professional help to deal with his feelings of grief, sorrow and guilt, and relied on his Catholic faith to give him strength to share his experiences with other schools and communities that have endured mass shootings, from Virginia Tech and Sandy Hook to the 2018 Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School massacre in Parkland, Florida.

DeAngelis, who had risen from teacher and athletics coach to principal before retiring after 35 years at Columbine, recently published a book, "They Call Me 'Mr. De': The Story of Columbine's Heart, Resilience, and Recovery," with all the proceeds going to various charities.

The book chronicles DeAngelis' journey through therapy, and healing from trauma, which he hopes will "give some support" to those who have experienced similar tragedies.

"Not only in communities like this, but people who go through some tough times in their lives," he said. "Columbine has become a beacon of hope." REUTERS

Why Aren't Doctors Telling Knee Arthritis Sufferers About These Two Often Successful Treatments?

Two Advanced Medical Treatments Every Knee Arthritis Sufferer Needs To Know - Before Or After Knee Replacement Surgery

NYC -If you suffer with knee arthritis pain, you have probably already tried many treatments... especially countless pain medications. With minimal or no results

Are there any better options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there are two very good options for knee arthritis a lot of knee arthritis sufferers have never heard of.

Before we get into the two treatments, please understand this...

NYC Pain MD is a REAL medical clinic that has treated thousands of knee arthritis sufferers. Patients travel from all over the state to be treated at one of their clinics because they want the best medical treatments available.

What you are about to discover are two REAL medical treatments. Not miracle cures you see on infomercials or on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no cure for arthritis. But there are these two treatments that have already helped thousands of knee arthritis sufferers - possibly just like you.

#1 Viscosupplementation

Here's what you need to know about viscosupplementation - the good and the bad....

When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubrication fluids in your knee. In other words, your knee joints basically "dries up."

The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid."

Pharmaceutical companies (with the help of scientists) can now make synovial fluid-like compounds that... during viscosupplementation treatments... doctors precisely inject directly into the knee joint.

This helps replace the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - allowing it to move more freely and smoothly and often decreasing or even eliminating the pain.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. But many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years... or even permanently cancel it.

But There Is A BIG Problem

The key is the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. If the procedure is slightly off, the formula will not get into the knee joint and the treatment will not work.

That's why the experts at NYC Pain MD use advanced digital imaging so they visually guide the injection accurately into the knee joint during the treatment.

Research shows that performing joint injections without imaging miss the joint as much as 30% of the time.

If you have had prior viscosupplementation without this special digital imaging without good results - this may be the exact reason why.

That's why NYC Pain MD even takes it one step further. They do not just use one form of advanced imaging during treatment - they use two in their "double confirmation" process. This is to ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation "medicines" also come in several different formulas.

Just like all medications, some people respond better to one than another. While many doctors only use one formula, the experts at NYC Pain MD use several and great effort is taken to figure out what the best one is for you.

What Should You Do If Viscosupplementation Fails?

#2 Radiofrequency Neurotomy

This treatment is called, "Radiofrequency Neurotomy." RF for short RF is a procedure that is based on the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

Several branches of nerves that surround the knee are known as "Genicular nerves."

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to the Genicular nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerves.

Two procedures are performed. First, a test, diagnostic "G Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, Genicular Neurotomy (GRF) is performed for long term relief.

Is It Safe?

Research has shown this procedure to be safe and effective.

One study published November 4, 2010 in the journal Pain found that RF treated subjects on average "achieved at least 50% knee pain relief at 1, 4 and 12 weeks, respectively. No patient reported a post-procedure adverse event during the follow-up period. RF neurotomy of

Advanced Imaging Allows Doctors To Pin-Point Treatments And Relieve Knee Arthritis Pain

Science rescues knee arthritis sufferers? Research shows joint injections done without advanced imaging misses the joint about 30% of the time. Now doctors can put lubricating fluid directly into the arthritis joint that may alleviate pain and restore function to many.

Genicular nerves leads to significant pain reduction and functional improvement in a subset of elderly chronic knee OA pain, and thus may be an effective treatment in such cases."

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti-inflammatory pain medication, physical rehab or viscosupplementation do not offer good enough results.

RF may be utilized before resorting to total knee replacement. RF allows many patients to avoid knee replacement surgery.

But - RF has also been found effective AFTER knee replacement surgery when the patient still feels pain.

The pain after a failed knee replacement surgery can be debilitating and this procedure may be the only thing that helps and give you after surgery relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain

NYC Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis screenings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get their questions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NYC Pain MD. If you would like to schedule a screening, just call 877-380-8537.

The screenings fill up fast every month. This screening is no cost and there absolutely no obligation.

More good news: for qualified candidates, insurances and Medicare often cover these treatments.

Florida judge blocks release of video in Patriots owner prostitution case

Prosecutors were to release the recordings prior to the reversal.

A Florida judge on Wednesday blocked prosecutors from releasing surveillance video from inside the massage parlor where New England Patriots owner Robert Kraft and dozens of other men have been accused of soliciting prostitution.

Prosecutors said earlier in the day in court filings that they would release the recordings, which were captured by police using hidden cameras, in response to public records requests under Florida's expansive open government laws.

But Circuit Court Judge Joseph Marx, who is overseeing the cases

New England Patriots owner Robert Kraft.

involving the spa's owner and manager, ruled that the video would remain sealed pending an April 29 hearing, when he will consider whether the evidence should be suppressed, according to court records.

Lawyers for Kraft, who has apologized for his actions at the Orchids of Asia Spa but pleaded not guilty to the charges, on Friday asked the judge handling Kraft's case to suppress the videotaped evidence of their client, saying it amounted to "basically pornography." A hearing on that matter is scheduled for next week.

In a letter filed with the court on Thursday, Kraft's lawyers accused prosecutors of committing "gross prosecutorial misconduct" by suggesting they would release the footage before its legality has been established.

Authorities in February announced misdemeanor charges against the 77-year-old Kraft and 24 other men for soliciting prostitution, part of a broader investigation of sex trafficking at massage parlors.

Media companies including ABC and ESPN opposed Kraft's motion, saying the judge would violate Florida's public records laws by suppressing the video.

Kraft purchased the Patriots, one of the National Football League's most successful franchises, in 1994. The team won its sixth Super Bowl under his ownership in February.

How To Know If Hormonal Replacement Therapy Is Right For You.

When it comes to understanding hormones or how hormones affect our overall health, we often get confused or at times misguided with preconceived notions that our hormonal peak is only relevant to our daily lives at the peak of our youth and pubescent stage.

However, that limited notion is entirely outdated as more women and men are finding the need to understand and be in tune with their hormonal states to restore hormonal equilibrium for each important stage in life. Through years of study, both women and men alike experience a variety of menopausal symptoms (women) or andropause symptoms (men) that can include changes in fertility, aging, weight maintenance, sexual desire and function, dermatological influx, bone strength (Osteoporosis) and urological concerns.

Fight brews over expected blacked out portions of Mueller report

Judiciary Committee Chairman Jerrold Nadler may issue subpoenas by Monday.

Congressional Democrats could move forward quickly — as early as Monday — with subpoenas to obtain Special Counsel Robert Mueller's full report on Russian interference in the U.S. 2016 election, after Attorney General William Barr releases a version on Thursday that may have significant portions blacked out.

A day before the planned release of a redacted version of the report, President Donald Trump went to Twitter to renew his attacks on the special counsel's investigation and the FBI.

When the report is released, close attention will be given not only to potential new details on the Trump campaign's contacts with Russia and the question of whether the Republican president acted to impede the inquiry, but also on how much Barr elects to withhold.

The Democratic-led House of Representatives Judiciary Committee voted on April 3 to authorize its chairman, Jerrold Nadler, to issue subpoenas to the Justice Department to obtain Mueller's unredacted report and all underlying evidence, as well as documents and testimony from five former Trump aides.

A source familiar with the matter said Nadler could issue subpoenas as early as Monday. The source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Friday would be too early for subpoenas unless the entire report were to be blacked out.

"Chairman Nadler has said that subpoenas could come very quickly if we do not receive the full, unredacted report with the underlying evidence from DOJ. We will have to see what comes out on Thursday," committee spokesman Daniel Schwarz said in a statement.

The department this week said the report would be released on Thursday to both Congress and the public, a day before the major religious holidays of Good Friday and Passover.

Barr, who has broad authority to decide how much of the report to release, has promised to be as transparent as possible, but told lawmakers he would redact four categories of content: secret grand jury information, intelligence-gathering sources and methods, information relating to active cases and information could affect the privacy of "peripheral third parties" who were not charged.

The redactions, to be color coded to reflect the reason they were omitted from the final report, have Democrats seeing red. They have expressed concern that Barr, a Trump appointee named after the president fired former Attorney General Jeff Sessions, could black out material to protect the president.

Mueller on March 22 submitted to Barr a nearly 400-page report on his 22-month investigation into whether the Trump campaign worked with Moscow to sway the election in his favor, and whether Trump committed obstruction of justice with actions to impede the inquiry.

In a letter to lawmakers two days later, Barr said Mueller did not find that members of Trump's campaign engaged in a criminal conspiracy with Russia. Barr said he determined there was not enough evidence to establish that Trump committed the crime of obstruction of justice, though Mueller did not exonerate Trump on obstruction.

Since then, Trump has set his sights on the FBI, and accused the Justice Department of improperly targeting his campaign. Last week, Barr told a U.S. Senate panel he believed "spying" did occur on Trump's campaign, and he plans to investigate whether it was properly authorized. REUTERS

BAKED DOG POOP

My Grumble is, as the warm to hot weather approaches, for people who have dogs in their yards, especially in rowhomes. The stench of baked dog poop is pretty unbearable when windows are open for a breeze this spring and summer. Please clean your yards because as well as us smelling it, you're seeing and smelling it, too. I like to cook out but it's unpleasant to see and smell a yard full of dog doo-doo. I don't like dookie-flavored meat! This is even offensive to the dogs. This fecal matter is on their paws and in your house. I don't want my laundry on the clothesline to be fragrant with baked dog poop. So don't grumble, be humble and clean it up. Thank you in advance.

Great ways to celebrate Easter with your family this weekend

patrick.king@metro.us

Easter Sunday is coming up and you may be looking for different ways to break free from your regular routine this year. Here are five great events happening around the city this weekend that will be fun for the entire family.

The Easter Parade and Bonnet Festival

While many people tend to take the traditional and more serious route on Easter Sunday, The Easter Parade and Bonnet Festival is a great way to shake things up and get outside for one of New York's most weird and jubilant events. Starting this Sunday at 10 a.m. to 4p.m. on Fifth Avenue and marching up from 49th Street to 57th Street, the parade is dedicated to insanelly tricked-out DIY "bonnets." While there may not be any floats with pop stars lip-synching to their current hits, this parade brings out the strange ingenuity that makes this city what it is. Perhaps you could make your own unique bonnet and join in on the fun?

The corresponding Annual Percentage Yield (APY) for this offer is 2.10%. The Special Rate will be applied to the enrolled savings account for a period of 12 months, starting on the date the account is enrolled in the offer. However, for any day during that 12 month period that the daily account balance is less than the $25,000 minimum, the Special Rate will not apply, and the interest rate will revert to the standard interest rate applicable to your Platinum Savings account. The 11-month New Dollar CD special requires a minimum of $25,000 brought to Wells Fargo from sources outside of Wells Fargo Bank N.A., or its affiliates to earn the advertised APY. Public Funds and Wholesale accounts are not eligible for this offer. APY assumes interest remains on deposit until maturity. Interest is compounded daily. Payment of interest on CDs is based on term: For terms less than 12 months (365 days), interest may be paid monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, or at maturity (the end of the term). For terms of 12 months or more, interest may be paid monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, or annually. A fee for early withdrawal will be imposed and could reduce earnings on this account. Special Rates are applicable to the initial term of the CD only. At maturity, the Special Rate CD will automatically renew for a term of 6 months, at the interest rate and APY in effect for CDs on renewal date not subject to a Special Rate, unless the Bank has notified you otherwise. 1,2. Due to the new money requirement, accounts may only be opened at your local branch. Wells Fargo reserves the right to modify or discontinue the offer at any time without notice. Minimum new money deposit requirement of at least $25,000 is for this offer only and cannot be transferred to another account to qualify for any other consumer deposit offer. Offer cannot be combined with any other consumer deposit offer, except the Portfolio by Wells Fargo $500 offer, available from March 25, 2019 until May 31, 2019. Offer cannot be reproduced, purchased, sold, transferred, or traded. 3. If the Portfolio by Wells Fargo relationship is terminated, the bonus interest rate on all eligible savings accounts, and discounts or fee waivers on other products and services, will discontinue and revert to the Bank's then-current applicable rate or fee. Museum of Manhattan has some pretty great exhibits. But this Easter Sunday will be something truly special as CMOM will be hosting its annual Easter Egg Hunt! Eggs will be hidden throughout the museum's five floors and children will have to work together to help fill in a color wheel with each colorful egg they find. What's more fun than that? The event will run both Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. and is free with museum admission.

Dog Easter egg hunt in Prospect Park this Saturday
One of the time-honored traditions of Easter Sunday is hiding a bunch of decorated Easter eggs for children of all ages — depends on how childlike at heart you are, really — to search for in hopes of cracking those shells to find whatever treats are hidden inside. But why do we get to have all of the fun when the world's most eager scavengers, our dogs, have to sit and watch in the sidelines? One day before Easter, the monthly dog-centric subscription service BARK will be hosting a "Dog Easter Egg Hunt" in Prospect Park's Long Meadow and Dog Beach this Saturday from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m.

so that dogs and their owners can search for 250 different Easter eggs with different treats and toys hidden inside. Each egg will also include a coupon for a free BarkBox from the company that will include a care package with more treats and toys.

Ice-skate with the Easter Bunny

Your children will probably go wild on Sunday looking for all of the Easter eggs the mysterious Easter Bunny will be hiding for them to find, but why not take them directly to the source? Rockefeller Center will be opening its world-famous ice skating rink for families to get the chance to ice-skate with the Easter Bunny himself. Skating sessions with Mr. Bunny will be from 8:30 a.m., 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Afterward, you and your family can feast on the perfect Easter Sunday brunch at either the Rock Center Cafe or The Sea Grill. Both restaurants will be offering special prix-fixe menus for both kids and adults. Make sure to head over to therinkatrockcenter.com to buy tickets.

The Rock and Roll Playhouse presents "The Music of Queen for Kids"

If celebrating Easter really isn't your family's thing, you could take a trip to Brooklyn Bowl this Sunday to see the Rock and Roll Playhouse perform kid-friendly versions of the legendary band Queen. The Rock and Roll Playhouse plays music at a considerably quieter volume to accommodate kids of all ages and also brings storytelling and games to the material it performs. Plus, you could pop over to one of the bowling lanes once the show is over or order up some Blue Ribbon fried chicken, conveniently located in the venue, for brunch. Head over to brooklynbowl.com for more information.

All about the vibes

Ryan Bingham is hitting the road with an all-new tour and album. MOLLY GIVEN

Bingham is touring around the country this year. GETTY

Singer-songwriter Ryan Bingham knows how to keep busy. The New Mexico native released a new album, is going on tour, helped create The Western music festival in Texas and even has a role on the hit show "Yellowstone" alongside Kevin Costner. Metro caught up with the singer before he hits the road with his exciting tour, and he gave us the scoop on his career, his inspirations and what to expect at his show in NYC on April 23 at Brooklyn Steel.

You've written songs for TV, shows, movies, and for your own album—where do you gather your inspiration from? Is it different for you when you're writing for yourself and when you're writing for TV or movies? Yeah, I think for film and TV stuff or for anything that already has a narrative or a story to go with it, I'm basically kind of following along with that or trying to put myself into the shoes of the characters and write towards that. Whenever I'm writing an album for myself, it's always kind of starting from scratch and it's always a bit autobiographical and personal—things that I've gone through growing up and how the world has influenced me in different ways. I just try to draw off of all of those inspirations as well as other inspirations I've had while growing up.

You're about to go on tour, what do you like most about being on the road? I've always kind of had a bit of an adventurous personality and when I was younger I was very much looking forward to getting out and seeing the world and traveling. Now that I've been on the road for a bit and kind of re-visiting some of these towns it gets to be more about sharing that personal experience with an audience and seeing kind of how they connect to these stories and the songs and how we all kind of have that human experience together. It always is kind of humbling and it's a magical thing.

Say there's someone who has never been to one of your shows but is thinking about going- what would you tell them to expect at a concert of yours?

You know, I really just tour around the country with a rock and roll band. I've got a lively band and it's upbeat, we try to have as much fun as we possibly can. Some of the songs that I write are folk songs that have a rock and roll vibe behind them, so there are parts of the show where we will play acoustic and play some ballads and things like that. But for the most part, it's a little more high energy and it's a kind of rock and blues show- that's kind of the gist of it.

I wanted to ask you about the music festival, The Western that you started down near Austin- why did you decide to have the festival there? When I first started play- ing music I lived down around Austin, Texas and it's just a big melting pot culturally and musically. There's a lot of different things going on there and when I really got into music and writing songs it was in that spot. That town of Austin and the surrounding areas were very supportive of songwriters and storytellers and the place Luckenbach, where we had the festival, is a little town right outside of Austin. It's a place where songwriters would go and sit around a campfire at night and people would just play songs and share stories- that's really where it all began for me. I think touring now with the band, schedules are always really hectic and there's not a lot of opportunities to do that anymore- just sit around with friends and kind of share songs and stories. So I really wanted the festival to kind of be based on the roots of that and be a fun and organic experience. Also, I just wanted it to be a really fun place to hang out, a lot of times festivals these days are a big tent in a parking lot and there's not a whole lot of vibe going on, so it's a great spot to hang all day with friends.

Just jumping briefly to your acting career as well, how has it been working with Kevin Costner and the rest of the cast on "Yellowstone"? Amazing. This is the first TV show I've ever had a part in so I would say I've been kind of spoiled with my experience just because the whole cast and crew are really great to work with. There are also lots of the writing and script changes so you never know what's going to happen next. Overall it's been a cool experience.

You obviously keep busy- what's next for you after you are done touring? When I was writing songs for this record I ended up with a lot more than I had originally planned on, so I think I'm going to take some of these songs I have left over and keep writing some new ones and probably put another album out. Kind of one thing at a time for me right now.

FOR ISLANDERS FANS: ENJOY EVERY MOMENT OF THIS RUN

PANTORNO'S PERCH

JOE PANTORNO

Wait a moment, you're not supposed to be here.

You shouldn't be sweeping the mighty Pittsburgh Penguins with their face-of-the-league superstar in Sidney Crosby.

How can you dominate one of the NHL's darling franchises like that? In that dumpy arena called Nassau Coliseum?

You play in a minor-league venue with bad ice. They're practically better than you in every way.

That's not how any of this is supposed to work. You're the laughing-stock of the NHL, remember? You have been for the past 30 years.

After all, you're rooting for a franchise that has treated the early 1980s as holy years of the most pious order because, well, there hasn't been anything else to really root for.

You've sat there and watched legends like Al Arbour, Bill Torrey, Mike Bossy, Dennis Potvin, Bobby Nystrom, Clark Gillies and Billy Smith make way for... nobodies.

Kirk Muller didn't want to play for you.

The Islanders were the epitome of irrelevance. A horrific rebranding that introduced the dreaded Fisherman logo was abhorred by the masses as the organization was desperate to move in a different direction after a stale decade followed the dynastic run of four straight Stanley Cups from 1980-1983.

Wendel Clark didn't want to play for you.

Mike Millbury destroyed the franchise, trading away the likes of Zdeno Chara, Roberto Luongo, Bryan McCabe, Zigmund Palffy, Todd Bertuzzi, Bryan Berard.

Ryan Smyth didn't

The Islanders have won a playoff series for just the third time since 1993. GETTY IMAGES want to play for you.

A con man in John Spano almost bought the team in 1996 before he was caught and pled guilty to bank and wire fraud charges.

Thomas Vanek didn't want to play for you.

You missed the playoffs 19 times in 30 years. You made finishes near the bottom of the Eastern Conference a regular sight.

Nassau County didn't want you.

Your Islanders became nomads after repeated attempts by the former late owner, Charles Wang, who did everything in his power to keep the team in New York, in their original home at the Coliseum.

He succeeded, but the Lighthouse Project failed as corrupt politicians refused to give the green light for a much-needed facelift of the sagging Coliseum and the surrounding area, forcing the organization out to Brooklyn.

Brooklyn didn't want you.

The New York City marriage was a disaster. Attendance suffered, mass transit for the heart of the fan base on Long Island has been a nightmare, and the arena wanted you out just two years after signing a 25-year lease.

It prompted a split of home games between the Barclays Center and the newly-renovated Coliseum, which received upgrades only after your team left.

Who plays their home games in two-different arenas? How many times did you hear that this year?

John Tavares didn't want to stay with you.

Your captain, who swore his allegiance to the Islanders up and down from Brooklyn to Hempstead Turnpike over the years, shunned you to go to the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Yes, you have every right to be upset at the way things went down, even if you can't blame the guy for wanting to go home.

So, once again, you had to sit through the incessant jokes that followed Tavares' departure and the ensuing fallout from smart-mouthed hockey analysts like myself along with far more prominent names at Sports Illustrated, ESPN, and The Sporting News who believed the Islanders didn't have a puncher's chance in flirting with a .500 record, let alone the playoffs.

They didn't get better when the response to Tavares' departure was to go out and sign veteran bottom-six forwards Leo Komarov, Valtteri Filppula and Tom Kuhnhackl.

Also in a desperate search for a No. 1 goalie, the Islanders lost out on Philipp Grubauer before turning to Robin Lehner, a netminder who had struggled under the starting load that came with a bad Buffalo Sabres team.

Not exactly moves that incited much hope for the organization that looked as though it was licking its wounds after a disastrous summer.

the season titled: "A 2018-19 NHL Season Preview of Every Team, From Best to Islanders." You can thank Lauren Theisen for that bulletin-board material, where she claimed that your team was "f—ed."

...

The oddest things can happen, though, when a sliver of competence is placed at the top of the organization.

And it shows that at the end of the day, you or me or every single hockey writer who has ever covered the game can't predict this sport.

Don't let them tell you any different. This isn't the NBA, where parity goes to die.

Instead of dolts like Millbury and Snow trying to build the organization, owners Jon Ledecky and Scott Malkin brought in Hall of Fame executive Lou Lamoriello as team president and general manager.

Lamoriello proceeded to snag Barry Trotz, fresh off a Stanley Cup championship with the Washington Capitals last season, as the team's head coach.

Suddenly, your team had a bench boss with experience closer to the great Arbour rather than the questionable coaches of the past ranging from Rick Bowness and Steve Stirling to Jack Capuano and Doug Weight.

Those odd things I referenced a few paragraphs ago? Well, they started happening almost immediately once the offseason wound down and skates were actually laced up.

Trotz was going to transform the largely unchanged roster from a loose, offensive-minded team to a structured, defensive side that would be difficult to break down.

No way was that going to work.

Your defense was the worst in hockey last season, allowing 296 goals. Nick Leddy and Johnny Boychuk were coming off the worst seasons of their careers while Ryan Pullock, Scott Mayfield and Adam Pelech were all plenty inexperienced.

Put in the unproven goalie platoon of Lehner and Thomas Greiss and it was understandable why so many people expected your team to struggle.

The Islanders swept a playoff series for the first time since 1983. GETTY IMAGES

Instead, your team thrived.

Lehner and Greiss became the best goaltending duo in hockey while the defense — which further flourished upon the introduction of Devon Toews following Thomas Hickey's injury — cut down their goals against by 100 in 2018-19.

Your team was winning games at an alarming clip that made the NHL world sit up and take notice. Heck, from Dec. 15 to Jan. 20 the Islanders were the hottest team in the NHL, winning 15 of 18 games.

It wasn't pretty hockey, and offensive stats were going to dip in this new system — an idea that could have negatively effected second-year phenom Mathew Barzal or former 40-goal scorer and new captain Anders Lee, or soon-to-be free agents Brock Nelson or Jordan Eberle.

Instead, everyone bought in, as it can be argued that the Islanders have the most organized team in hockey, finishing with 103 points on the season, their best output since 1984-85.

They might be the most underrated 103-point team in NHL history.

Despite being the higher seed and having home-ice advantage at the Nassau Coliseum, a multitude of writers picked your team to be bounced out of the first round of the playoffs by the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Heading into the first-round series, ESPN even ranked the Islanders' defense dead last out of the 16 playoff teams remaining. Much like Lauren Theisen at Deadspin, you can thank Dimitri Filipovic for that extra bit of motivation.

I wonder what he's thinking now?

Your Islanders completely shut down the Penguins in the first round, outscoring them 14-6 while Lehner posted a sterling save percentage of .956.

The afterthoughts, the nobodies, the has-beens, the never-will-be's; they defeated the big bad Penguins.

They held Crosby, Evgeni Malkin, Jake Guentzel and Phil Kessel to just seven combined points over four games.

They found the offense when it mattered most. Eberle scored a goal in every game. Brock Nelson and Josh Bailey added three apiece. Key contributions came from those grizzled veteran signings in Filppula, Komarov and Kuhnackl, whom everyone once scoffed at after Tavares' departure.

Let them keep laughing. You'll just stay in your lane as your Islanders continue to reach new heights. They're moving on to the second round of the playoffs for just the third time since 1993.

They even lit up the Empire State Building orange and blue for you following Tuesday night's monumental win.

Maybe the rest of the hockey world will start taking the Islanders for real. Or maybe they'll just keep thinking that this is all one exorbitant ruse.

After all, you're not supposed to be here.

Enjoy, the ride, folks. Try not to laugh too hard at all the naysayers this year.

Nets return home for Game 3 vs. Sixers

With the series tied at one game apiece, the Nets will look to regain some momentum in Brooklyn tonight.

joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The NBA playoffs make their return to Brooklyn for the first time in five years as the Nets host the Philadelphia 76ers in Game 3 of their Eastern Conference first-round series.

The 76ers have reclaimed the momentum after hammering the Nets in Game 2, putting up a 145-123 victory fueled by an NBA-record-tying 51-point third quarter.

Brooklyn managed to snag a surprising split of the series, though, in the series opener, a nine-point victory where they held three of Philadelphia's starting five to a combined 18 points.

There has been no answer for Sixers star center Joel Embiid, who continues to tear the Nets apart down low.

Despite being limited to an average of 22:35 on the floor over the first two games as he continues to battle knee issues that held him out for 14 of the Sixers' final 24 outings of the regular season, Embiid is still putting up 22.5 points and 12.5 rebounds per game this series.

The Nets' inability to find any sort of answer in stopping Embiid has fallen on the shoulders of 20-year-old center Jarrett Allen, who has constantly been bullied by the Sixers star.

It makes Allen the X factor for Brooklyn's chances in the playoffs as the Sixers have looked beatable while Embiid has either been shut down or not on the floor.

If he can even move Embiid away from the basket and force him to take tougher shots, it will only better the Nets' chances of hanging tough.

As it stands, it's been far too easy for Embiid.

"If you're going to give me that much space, I feel like I can do a lot of things with it... I just decided to be aggressive and drive the ball," Embiid said after Game 2. "We made a big point of finding me in the post. I feel like my teammates did a great job of finding me and we moved the ball, we shared the ball, and we were just aggressive."

That makes the contributions of the other four members of Philadelphia's starting five that much more important as consistency has failed to reach the jelling group.

Neither JJ Redick, Jimmy Butler, Tobias Harris, nor Ben Simmons has been able to record double-digit scoring outputs in each of the first two games of the series.

Should the five click — and we saw hints of that in the third quarter of Game 2 — then the 76ers will be an unstoppable force for at least this series.

For the Nets, a return home to the Barclays Center might just be what the doctor ordered.

"Very, very excited. I know the Barclays Center is going to be jumping in there," All-Star point guard D'Angelo Russell said. "I know our fans are [hungry]. Philly fans, they treated us well. I know our fans are going to treat them well, so we're excited about that. Get back home, take care of home court. The buzz around the city is what we need. We need that atmosphere, we need that energy to be up like that."

Russell's main objective come Game 3 will be to try and get his offensive game going while being guarded by Simmons. After torching the Sixers for 26 points in Game 1 while Simmons was affected by the boos of his home fans, Russell was limited to just 16 points in Game 2 by the 76ers guard.

"Ben was excellent," Nets head coach Kenny Atkinson said of Simmons. "He really picked it up. ... They picked [Russell] up full court, denied him. That got us out of our rhythm."

Big contributions from Russell will be one of the only ways the Nets can hang in this series, especially if things get into an offensive shoot-out like in Game 2.

Tip-off is at 8 p.m. ET on YES or TNT.
